This is only the third part of K. Henry VI.
The second part, according to Pope, was likewise printed in 1600, by W. W. for
Tho. Millington.

THE TRVE TRAGEDIE
OF RICHARD DVKE OF YORKE,
AND THE GOOD KING
HENRIE THE SIXT.

Enter Richarde Duke of Yorke, The Earle of Warwicke, The Duke of Norffolke, Marquis Montague, Edward Earle of March, Crookeback Richard, & the young Earle of Rutland, with Drumme and Souldiers, with white Roses in their hattes.

Warwicke.

I Wonder how the King eſcapt our handes?
Yorke. Whilſt we purſude the Horſemen of the North,
He ſlily ſtole away, and left his men:
Whereat the great Lord of Northumberland,
Whoſe warlike eares could neuer brooke retrait,
Chargde our maine Battels front, and therewith him
Lord Stafford and Lord Clifford all abreſt
Brake in, & were by the hands of common Souldiers ſlaine.
Edw. Lord Staffords father, Duke of Buckingham,
Is either ſlaine, or wounded dangerouſly;
I cleft his Beuer with a downe right blow:
Father that this is true, behold his bloud.
Mont. And brother, heeres the Earle of Wiltſhires blood,
Whom I incountred as the Battailes ioynd.
Rich. Speake thou for me, and tell them what I did.
York. What, is your grace dead my L. of Somerſet?
Norf. Such hope haue all the line of Iohn of Gaunt.
Rich. Thus doe I hope to ſhape King Henries head,
War. And ſo do I victorious Prince of Yorke,
Before I ſee thee ſeated in that throne,
Which now the houſe of Lancaſter vſurpes,
